

Lost castle revealed

Excavations on the site of Sheffield castle have shown it was “among the most important political and cultural centres in medieval England”, according to archaeologists from Sheffield University. The castle was destroyed in the Civil War and the city centre site was covered by a markets complex until it was demolished five years ago.

